—Here's a cautionary example for housewives, and all who appropriate the property of others. A Lakewood housewife had used milk bottles for putting up fruit, in place of fruit cans. One of the milk companies had lost bottles until 300 were missing, and a search warrant was issued by the justice. A constable visited the home and found 78 of the bottles, which had to be immediately emptied. Not having room to hold the contents of all, that of 23 bottles had to be thrown away by her own hands.

—First the paint and oil producers stood pat at the tariff hearings. Now the distillers and wine makers are holding up their hands in holy horror and exclaiming against a decrease in the duties. And so it will go on down the whole list, through tobacco, sugar, metals, hemp and wool to miscellaneous, the last on the list of the schedules to be considered. The whole business of hearings is a silly hoax. No one will be deceived by the assertions of the very people about whom a tariff barrier has been raised, who have grown fat under its beneficent protection and who certainly do not care a reduction in weight. But how does this benefit performance appeal to the majority of the people, the consumers, who are obliged to pay the piper?—Pittsburg Post.

McClusky Granted a Divorce.
The end of the matrimonial troubles of F. Roy McClusky, who until his wife deserted him to run away with William H. Bowen, a resident of Salem, as the husband avers, was agent for the Erie Railroad company at Canfield, came on Thursday afternoon, when Judge Geo. F. Robinson in common pleas court granted him a divorce from the woman, says the Vindicator.

The couple had been married in Youngstown on January 16, 1902, and afterward lived at Washingtonville, later at Aurora, O., and still later at Ben Avon, near Pittsburgh, where they remained for nearly three years. It was there that McClusky first began to suspect the unfaithfulness of his wife, and in his petition for divorce he charged infidelity with a Mr. Heckert of that place.

Later they went to Canfield, where to all appearances they were happy together. She was a beautiful woman, while the husband had the respect of all in the village. Last summer his wife deserted him, leaving on July 1 with William Bowen of Salem, according to the husband. He did not know where she went, but thought the two were living together in Detroit. There summons in the case was served, but the letter came back to the county clerk's office unopened. When his marital troubles became public Mr. McClusky left his position in Canfield.

Regarding the McClusky affair the Salem News on Saturday contained the following: When the couple eloped they came to this city and left on a Stark Electric car. For a time their whereabouts were unknown, but Bowen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bowen, of East Palestine, also former Salem residents, later heard from him in Dayton. He would not return, however, and his broken-hearted wife returned to her home in East Palestine.

Since that time the affair has quieted down in this city, as it was thought that the elopers had gone to stay. But some time within the past two weeks they returned to this vicinity, and both are now living at Columbiana. Bowen was seen at that place within the past week by Salem people, and when approached on the subject of his flying trip from this city, talked freely.

Bowen admitted that he stole away with the McClusky woman under his protecting wing. She was pretty and charming, and Bowen was head over heels in love with her at first sight. It was not hard for either one to be influenced to leave their happy homes, and so they went to Detroit, where until recently they resided, Bowen having secured employment there.

Bowen is unrelenting and says he does not care to return to his wife, and the two are not on speaking terms. He claims that he is not living with the McClusky woman, but is said that the two reside in the same house.

IF ROOSEVELT AND BRYAN GO TO THE SENATE.

ABE RUEF'S TRIAL MUST PROCEED

THE DILATORY MOTIONS PRESENTED BY HIS ATTORNEYS ARE BRUSHED ASIDE.

COURT ROOM IS GUARDED.

Prosecutor Heney is Rapidly Recovering from the Wound Inflicted by Haas and in a Few Weeks He Will Resume Work.

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—Superior Judge Lawlor on Tuesday brushed aside all dilatory motions interposed by the attorneys for Abraham Ruef and the trial of the former political boss on one of the many charges of bribery against him, which was interrupted by the attempt to assassinate Prosecutor Francis J. Heney, will proceed to-day with the taking of testimony for the state, unless the defense delays the hearing with further technicalities.

During two sessions of court Judge Lawlor denied in succession the motion of Ruef for change of venue, continuance of 30 days and dismissal of the jury.

Precautions were taken to safeguard the court room from violence. Ruef was brought from the county jail closely guarded and a large number of policemen were scattered around the approaches to the court room. The only unusual incident of the day in the court room was the ejection of R. A. Adams, who had taken a seat directly behind Ruef and was reviling him.

Francis J. Heney is recovering with surprising rapidity from the bullet wound inflicted by Morris Haas, and it is predicted that in a few weeks he will be able to resume his prosecution of the graft cases. There are no indications of blood poisoning and the soreness is gradually leaving his wound. He is able to swallow without serious difficulty and on Tuesday was able to take liquid nourishment.

A DYNAMITE SCARE.

It Causes Great Excitement Among Residents of Hamilton, O.

Hamilton, O., Nov. 18.—A cordon of heavily armed police is patrolling the residence district of East Hanover street to prevent any attempt to dynamite homes by the so-called Black Hand society. For weeks this district has been in a turmoil. About a dozen female residents received letters in which their lives and homes were threatened if they did not leave the neighborhood immediately. Their characters were defamed in the vilest manner and the writer threatened to blind their children with caustic.

After an investigation the police arrested Mrs. Nellie Grabel last Saturday. She was charged with being the author of certain letters received in the case. She was placed under bond in the sum of $500 for a hearing in police court Tuesday.

Developments Tuesday caused the case to be postponed until next Friday. Mrs. Martin Schallp found a letter on her porch in which she was told that if she did not drop her charges against Mrs. Grabel she would be killed and her home would be dynamited. Mrs. Schallp is the prosecuting witness against Mrs. Grabel. To prevent the threats from being carried out, the police placed the neighborhood under guard.

The neighborhood is in a frenzy. None of the residents venture out at night unless attended. Owners of real estate have placed their property under guard. It is feared that a serious outbreak will take place.

STYLES IN GLOVES

TWO-BUTTON AND SINGLE-CLASP LENGTHS POPULAR.

Indications Are That Dark Shades Will Be Largely Worn—Green to Be One of the Colors Most Affected.

Advanced styles in gloves indicate that long sleeves are an established fact, for most of them are in two-button and single-clasp lengths that barely cover the wrists.

These up-to-date gloves are in taupe, wistaria, dark green and rich deep brown colors.

Among these decided tints there is an extremely pretty shade of wistaria—that looks like mauve until the two colors are placed side by side—that will be worn with gowns on dahlias and wistaria tints. Taupe goes well with almost any color and is expected to become very popular.

Green is a color that seems to be coming to the fore, and some very pretty gloves in dark green are seen in both emerald and olive shades.

Suede, too, is struggling for a place in the glove world, and, as this kind has a tendency to reduce the size of the hand, probably it will meet favor. On the whole, however, fashion's fancy is for bright, glossy surfaces, hence the full line of glove kids.

Mocha is always in demand as fall advances, and several new shades are seen in this popular kind of hand covering.

The favorite tones will be taupe, tan, slate and gray, and, fortunately for those women whose hands perspire freely, these gloves with silk linings can be bought. The value of the silk lies in the fact that it keeps the hands warm and absorbs the perspiration.

Auto gloves are made with deep flaring gauntlets in the favorite tans and dark browns.

At three dollars a pair there is a very good model, with wide cuff, gusset strap at wrist, and spear-back, colors tan and black, and a cheaper grade at two dollars a pair is made with a large gusset at the side for slipping on and off quickly. It has no clasp.

The coolest looking angora and rabbit wool gloves are ready for those who prefer these for cold days. They come in white, black, natural tints and gray.

The evening gloves are of fine glace kid, long, of course, and show no outre or extraordinary features. The backs are plain, for neither embroidery nor applique marks the newest styles. It is possible to get evening gloves in every imaginable color, but white is always in good taste, and it goes without stating—the most economical, for not only will it harmonize with any toilet, but it can be cleaned time and again and looks like new, which is not the case with colors.

THE TOILET TABLE.

Orange juice with cracked ice can often be taken by a patient who can retain nothing else.

Orange juice, being laxative, is excellent in most sickrooms; is sometimes even prescribed for typhoid fever patients.

Very sensible for use in the bath is a mitten crocheted of white darning cotton. The hand slips into it easily, and many people who have used them prefer them to any other kind of wash cloth.

Few practices are more beneficial to the condition of the eyes than is that of bathing them regularly every night before going to bed. Dust readily accumulates on the lids between the lashes and causes them to smart.

A perfectly flat line is fashionable in conjunction with the slenderest of hips, but given self-assertive hips the extreme flat back achieved by many of the smart skirt models is an absurdity, and good sense must guide one rather than a slavish acceptance of fashion extremes.

The Jeweled Tie.

Not least interesting among the display of novelties at this season are the fancies in jewelry. French con artists that give style to the costume. The latest arrival in the collection is the jeweled tie, a narrow black velvet ribbon, half an inch wide, that passes around the base of the collar, knots at the front, with its tasseled ends hanging as low as the bust. These consist of double triangular pendants hinged one to the other so that they swing freely, catching the light. The setting is of rhinestones in silver, and the workmanship lovely. With after noon gowns or toilets of any circumstance these accessories are charming, though too showy, of course, for a shirt-waist, unless it be of the costliest sort.

A Pretty Idea.

A clever hostess announced the forthcoming nuptials of a young daughter in the following manner: The table was beautifully decorated with a bank of white roses and asparagus ferns in the center, while suspended from the chandelier was a blaque could carrying a small silver dart. He was, seemingly, watching the effect of his silver dart that pierced two tiny white hearts imbedded in the bank of roses, containing the names of the two young people, likewise the date of the forthcoming nuptials. "The best yet," exclaimed an enthusiastic guest, "for it is simple, pretty and nothing overdone about it."

Statues and Posterity.
How many statues we shall leave to future generations! I imagine they will not be a little ashamed of the number, and, as the glory of most celebrities is short-lived they will not be very grateful to us for the legacy.
—Le Petit Parisien.

Nothing Surprising.
An exchange tries to make a point by mentioning that the shape of the fish hook has not changed in 2,000 years. Pooh, neither has the shape of the fish.

GERMS AND MILK.

According to a recent dictum of science, the number of germs in a single teaspoon of milk, one hour after it has been hurried away from the cow on its career of death and destruction, has been reduced by modern methods from one or two millions to about 250.

These germs are not in the milk at the time it leaves the cow, but, unless something is done about it, they begin to arrive in large quantities from this moment. They come in excursion trains or on foot. The line of germs waiting to get into an ordinary bottle of milk has been extending far out into the street. Police germs have had great trouble in preserving order, and, of course, had there been a riot much damage might have been done to property.

All this, however, is now an affair of the effete past. The regulations are so strict that only a given number of germs may pass, and even these have to give the countersign.

But even 250 germs to a teaspoon seem a good deal. What is to be done about them? We are informed that they are not all unfriendly. Many of them are neutral. Many of them come in quietly, sit down, occupy themselves with domestic amusements, and do no harm. But among these there is still the likelihood that a real enemy to the system may get in.

Until not a single germ can pass the sentry, therefore, is our milk likely to be safe. All babies are hereby warned to drink it at their peril. They will be duly notified when science has barred out successfully every intruder, no matter what his age, nationality or previous condition of servitude.—Life.

By Way of Encouragement.

"May I ask how you earned your first dollar?" queried the reporter.

"I earned it, young man," said the financial magnate, "many years ago by doing just what you are doing now, as my first assignment on a newspaper. I went out to interview a man, and it may interest you to know that I got a good deal more information out of him than you're going to get out of me."—Chicago Tribune.

Not Fit for Publication.

"Isn't it scandalous about the Wappaleys?"

"What about them? I understand that Mrs. Wappaley has secured a divorce, but I haven't learned any of the particulars."

"Nobody else has. The case is such a nasty one that the records have all been hidden."—Chicago Record-Herald.

INFORMATION WANTED.

"I understand," said the chief of police, "that you intend to give the Salome dance here."

"Yes," replied the manager of the traveling theatrical company, "we have arranged to do so, but I assure you that we have made it entirely unobjectionable. There is nothing about the dance that you would not want your wife or your daughter to see. It is artistic—nothing more."

"Then what the dickens do you want to give it for?"—Chicago Record-Herald.
